Manufacturer: MOMCOZY

Referention number: DNXXGJOIERMMJJ

Information:

Momcozy is a natural, vegan nipple cream made from 6 plant-based ingredients that quickly soothes irritation, moisturises and protects the nipples from cracking. It contains no lanolin, preservatives, petroleum or artificial fragrances, making it safe for both mother and baby and requiring no washing off before feeding. The light, fast-absorbing formula leaves no greasy layer or stains on underwear. The cream also works well as a lubricant for a breast pump and for caring for dry lips and hands. Ideal during pregnancy, the postpartum period and everyday breastfeeding.

Full product description

Momcozy - Natural care and protection for your breasts

The period during which breastfeeding takes place is a time of special closeness, but also a challenge for your skin. The Momcozy brand has created a product that provides quick relief to irritated areas, while ensuring the highest comfort for a new mother. This plant-based ointment is an essential balm for every mother, helping to regenerate sore nipples and protecting them from cracking. Unlike traditional products, this moisturising formula does not contain lanolin, making it an ideal alternative for those looking for vegan and eco-friendly products.

Plant-based nipple cream - the power of nature without lanolin

Traditional lanolin has been replaced here by a unique blend of six plant-based components. Each ingredient, such as shea butter, olive oil, candelilla wax or sea buckthorn oil, has been selected to support nipples in the healing process. This natural care protective cream is completely safe for both mother and baby, as it is free from preservatives, petroleum and artificial fragrances. As a result, it does not need to be washed off before putting the little one to the breast, making feeding much simpler.

Multi-purpose moisturising balm - support for the breast pump and skin

This organic moisturising cream stands out for its light consistency, which absorbs instantly without leaving greasy marks. It can be successfully used as a lubricant to help fit the flanges when you use a breast pump. Care after each pumping session helps create a protective barrier that minimises friction and prevents the sensitive skin from drying out. The Momcozy ointment also works well as a remedy for chapped lips or dry hands, making it a bio product with versatile use.

Safe nipple cream during pregnancy and the postpartum period

Preparation for lactation is worth starting already during pregnancy, by toughening and moisturising the nipples. This hypoallergenic nipple cream does not contain harmful substances, such as those with zinc oxide, making it a top-class organic product. It is extremely efficient and spreads easily, providing immediate soothing relief. It is a perfect gift idea for breastfeeding women – the eco-friendly and vegan choice highlights care for health and the environment, delivering everything needed to make feeding a pure pleasure.

Light consistency and maximum efficiency in everyday use

What sets the Momcozy product apart from other ointments is its exceptionally light and silky texture. The balm emulsifies instantly under the warmth of the hands, allowing it to be applied very easily and gently to sore nipples without unnecessary pressure. Thanks to its quick absorption, the ointment does not stain underwear and does not leave an unpleasant sticky film, which significantly increases the comfort of a new mother. Only a small amount is needed to provide sensitive skin with deep hydration and long-lasting protection, making the packaging very efficient and enough for a long period of intensive feeding.
