Full product description

Destroyer from building blocks

MOULD KING 10133 BATTLE-CLASS DESTROYER MODEL BUILDING SET is a construction set for people who like military models, warships and projects that require focus. The model depicts a destroyer with an elongated silhouette, a deck full of details and a characteristic arrangement of superstructures. Once assembled, the ship looks great as a collector's item, room decoration or display piece for fans of warships and construction blocks.

1815 pieces in the set

The set consists of 1815 elements, allowing you to gradually build the hull, deck, turrets, masts and small details of the ship. This number of blocks makes the assembly engaging and gives plenty of satisfaction at each stage of the work. The model will appeal to people who value longer construction projects and enjoy watching a complex naval vessel take shape from individual parts.

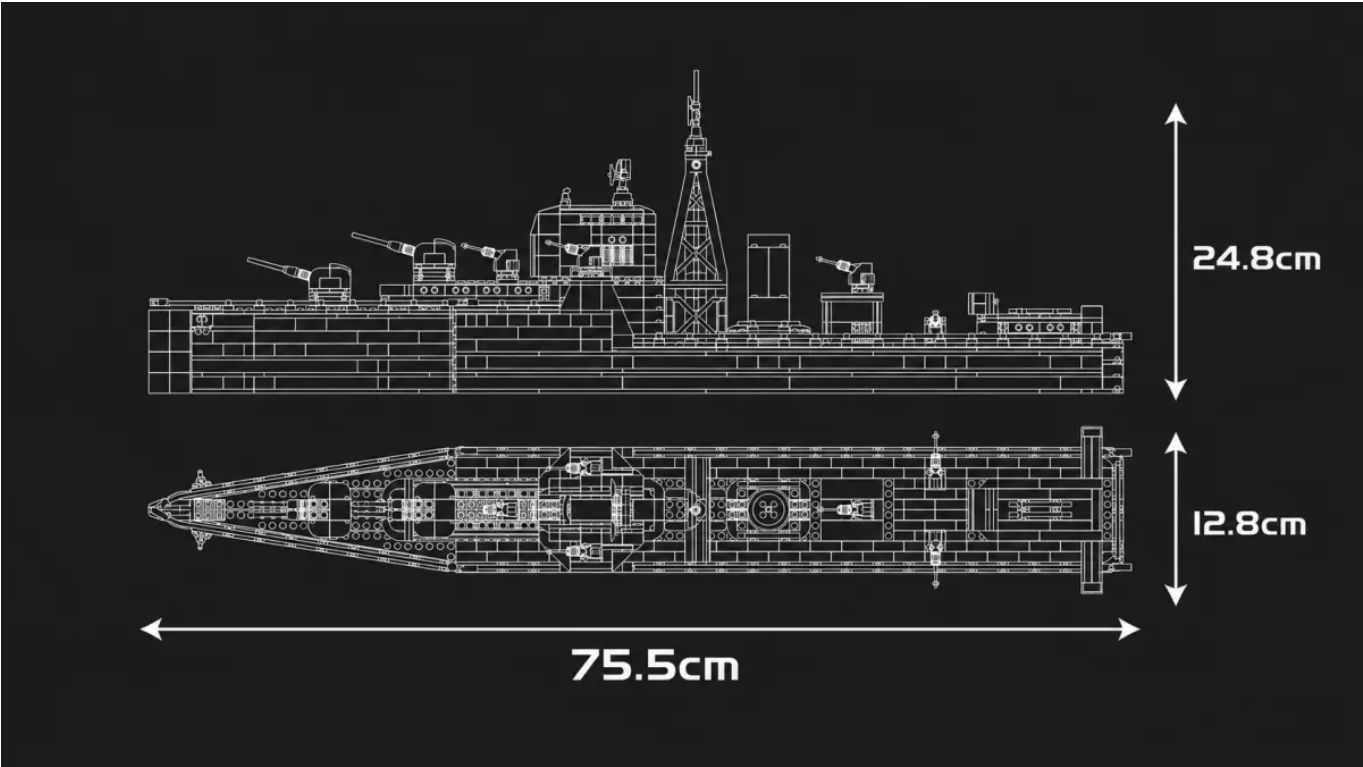

Combat character

Battle-Class Destroyer stands out with its slim hull line and combat look, referencing classic warships. The details arranged on the deck emphasise the technical character of the build, and the model's proportions make the whole piece look attractive from the side, from above and at a slight angle. This is a set that fits well into a collection of military vehicles, ships and models inspired by naval history.

Model for display

The finished Mould King warship can become a striking element of a home display. The long hull, deck layout and visible weapon elements attract the eye and give the build a collector’s character. The model will work well as a gift for fans of blocks, military themes and naval combat vessels. Building it helps develop patience, planning and precision, while the final result offers many display possibilities.
