Full product description

MOULD KING 24115 - three plant compositions made from bricks

The MOULD KING 24115 Mini Potted Plants set lets you build three separate decorations inspired by potted plants. The collection includes a spreading bonsai, white flowers with purple centres, and a red tulip with a smaller side bud. Each model has its own base or pot, so the finished builds can be displayed together or placed in different parts of a room. The set consists of 199 pieces and combines the pleasure of building with the opportunity to create a lasting decoration for a desk, shelf or chest of drawers.

Plant decoration for the home, office and studio

The finished models are compact in size, so they do not require much space for display. They can be placed next to a lamp, photo frames, books or other decorations, creating a calm composition inspired by nature. The varied colours of the plants enliven the arrangement, while the brick-built form gives the whole set a creative character. No watering or maintenance is required, so the set is also suitable for places where live plants have limited access to light.

Three models, many arrangement possibilities

Each of the three constructions has a different shape, colour scheme and finish, allowing for a variety of decorative layouts. The plants can be placed on a shared tray, arranged among real greenery, or used as separate accents in several rooms. The composition looks good both from the front and from above, as the individual leaves, flowers and bases create recognisable silhouettes. As a result, the set can become an interesting addition to a relaxation corner, study or collector's room.

Miniature bonsai with a spreading crown

The central element of the collection is a bonsai with a brown, curved trunk and spreading branches covered with green leaves. The tree is set in a dark pot placed on a brown base that resembles a wooden display mat. The layered crown construction emphasises the character of the miniature tree and makes the model stand out despite its compact form. The bonsai can be displayed on its own as a central decoration or serve as a backdrop for the two colourful flower models.

White flowers with purple accents

The second construction depicts a bouquet of five white flowers with distinctive purple centres. The flowers are arranged on a branching green stem and complemented by broad leaves emerging from a blue pot. The combination of white, purple, green and the muted shade of the container makes the model suitable for both bright and more natural arrangements. The numerous stems and petals make the building process more varied, and the finished construction looks good from different angles.

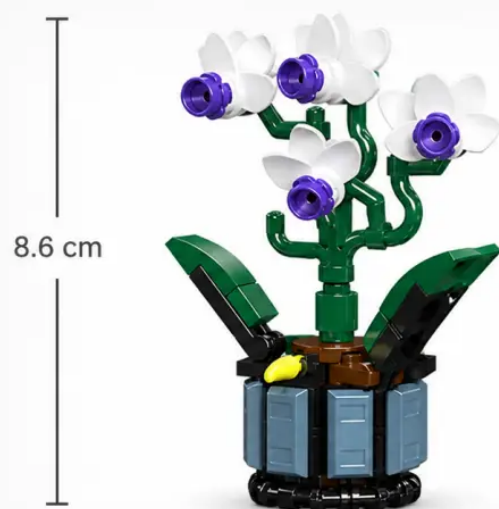

Red tulip with a decorative pot

The third model is a red tulip with a large flower placed on a green stem. The construction is complemented by a smaller side bud and branching plant elements that enrich the silhouette of the entire decoration. The brown pot is decorated with a floral pattern, which emphasises the decorative character of the set and distinguishes it from the other bases. The intense red of the tulip creates a strong contrast with the green elements and makes the model a colourful accent for a shelf or desk.

Compact construction full of plant details

Once assembled, the white flowers model reaches a height of 8.6 cm, making it easy to place even on a small shelf, table or worktop. Despite its small format, the construction includes several flowers, a branching stem, broad leaves and a multi-part pot. Building the individual sections helps you discover how organic shapes can be created using small bricks. The set will suit people who like plant motifs, miniature constructions and decorative models intended for display.
