Full product description

MOULD KING 24121 - bamboo bonsai from building blocks

MOULD KING 24121 Bamboo Bonsai Building Set is a decorative model depicting a spreading bamboo plant placed in an ornamental pot. The construction combines intensely green stems and leaves with a navy cover, a yellow band and a brown base. Once built, the set becomes an eye-catching addition to a living room, study, bedroom or relaxation area. The plant motif helps create a calm atmosphere indoors, while requiring no watering or regular care.

375 pieces and engaging building

The set consists of 375 pieces, from which the stems, branches, leaves, pot and decorative base are built step by step. This number of parts makes it possible to get involved in the build without having to devote many days to the project. The successive stages help you observe how a three-dimensional composition inspired by bamboo emerges from small blocks. Assembly can be a way to enjoy a quiet afternoon, take a break from the screen or spend time with someone interested in model making.

Expanded form of stems and leaves

The model draws attention with its varied stem heights and numerous clusters of small leaves. Darker connectors placed between the green segments emphasise the characteristic structure of bamboo, making the construction clear even from a short distance. Branches pointing in different directions ensure the composition does not look flat and presents well from several angles. The plant details also offer an interesting assembly stage, during which each successive branch gradually thickens the overall form.

Ornamental pot with a decorative base

The bamboo is set in a rounded navy pot decorated with a contrasting yellow band. The lower part of the construction is complemented by a brown base resembling a small wooden stand, giving the model the character of a decorative display plant. The combination of colours clearly separates the green plant section from the base and emphasises the multi-level structure of the project. The pot is an integral part of the set, so once assembled the model can be placed straight away in the chosen spot without looking for an additional container.

A plant accent for the home space

The finished bamboo can complement an arrangement based on wood, natural fabrics, ceramics and muted accessories. It pairs well with a tea set, decorative stones, a woven mat or other plant models made of blocks. Its compact form makes it suitable for placing on a table, shelf, sideboard or desk, where it can serve as a striking yet tidy accent. The model also helps bring a nature motif into rooms where caring for live plants is difficult.

Model height 21.7 cm

Once assembled, the construction reaches a height of 21.7 cm, making it clearly visible while not taking up much space. The model's proportions allow both the elaborate bamboo crown and the decorative pot with its base to be displayed. This size makes it possible to place the decoration on a standard shelf, a small table or a sideboard. The model can be displayed on its own or as part of a larger collection of flowers, trees and other plants made of blocks.

A gift idea for block and plant enthusiasts

MOULD KING 24121 combines the pleasure of building with the opportunity to create a lasting decoration inspired by nature. The set may appeal to people who collect plant models, fans of calm construction projects and users looking for an original interior accessory. Once completed, the model can be placed in a visible spot and used as part of a zen or oriental-style arrangement. The bamboo also makes a great gift for someone who enjoys creative activities and self-made decorations.
