Information:

The ebru set is a creative activity involving making colourful patterns on water and transferring them onto paper. It allows easy experimentation with colours and shapes, develops imagination, concentration, patience and manual skills. Ideal for children from 3 years old and for shared play with parents. The set includes a tray, base liquids, paper, 12 pigments, a protective apron, and accessories for creating patterns, such as pipettes, a comb, tweezers, tongs and a needle. The set also includes 4 plaster figurines.

Full product description

Discover the magic of ebru

The ebru technique allows you to create patterns on water that can be transferred onto paper. The set makes it easy to experiment with colours and shapes, and every piece becomes a unique work of art that develops imagination and creativity.

Creative fun step by step

Simply pour water into the tray, add a few drops of pigments and form patterns using the included tools. Gentle mixing and shaping of the colours allows you to create spectacular compositions, which are then transferred onto paper.

Development of manual skills

Water painting supports motor skills, concentration and patience. Children learn how to combine colours, observe the effects of their actions and develop manual skills during relaxing and creative play.

Fun for the whole family

The set is intended for children from 3 years old and encourages shared play with parents. It is also a great educational or birthday gift idea. Ease of use and attractive packaging encourage creative experiments at home.
