Full product description

Palette for many make-up looks

Poppy Head Basically Boring is a palette of nine eyeshadows that lets you create both understated daytime make-up and more striking evening looks. The versatile colour range includes seven mattes and two shimmery shades.

Neutral colour range

Carefully selected shades range from a light, creamy beige to a deep brown. The colours can be freely combined, using them to highlight, define the crease and darken the outer corner of the eye.

Seven matte eyeshadows

Seven matte shades allow you to build depth and gradually increase the intensity of your make-up. The talc-free, highly pigmented formula applies easily, and the colours blend seamlessly together, helping to create soft transitions.

Two shimmery shades

Two shimmery eyeshadows complement the neutral range and let you add a luminous touch to your make-up. You can apply them all over the lid, in the inner corner of the eye or in the centre of the eyelid.

Compact palette

The handy format makes it easy to store the palette in your make-up bag and take it with you when travelling. The large mirror helps you apply make-up and make touch-ups comfortably away from home.

Application method

Apply the light matte shade as a base or under the brow bone. Use medium shades to define the crease, and darker shades to emphasise the outer corner and lash line. Apply the shimmery eyeshadows with your finger or a flat brush to the chosen area.
