Full product description

Akaso V50 X - Your sports camera for every adventure

Looking for a camcorder that will capture your most dynamic moments in high 4K quality? The Akaso V50 X sports camera is the perfect solution for lovers of extreme sports, travel and all outdoor activities. Thanks to its cutting-edge technology, rugged design and excellent image quality, this camcorder will perform in all conditions, offering unparalleled recording quality.

Image quality at the highest level

The Akaso V50 X offers incredible image quality with 4K resolution at 30 frames per second. This ensures that your videos will be crystal clear, full of detail and saturated colors, no matter where you are recording. The Akaso V50 X sports camera is equipped with a Sony IMX386 sensor, which guarantees excellent color reproduction and a high level of detail even in difficult lighting conditions.

Powerful battery and long recording

The Akaso V50 X camcorder is equipped with two batteries with a capacity of 1350 mAh each, ensuring long recording time and allowing you to record your adventures without interruption. You don't have to worry about suddenly running out of power - just replace the battery and you can continue recording. Thanks to this feature, the camera will be perfect for long expeditions and intensive recording sessions.

Easy operation and full control

The Akaso V50 X sports camera is equipped with a 2.0" touchscreen for easy and intuitive operation. You can quickly adjust settings, check recordings and control the camera without the need for additional devices. In addition, you can control the camera remotely using a remote control or mobile app, which is especially useful during dynamic situations when you need full control over your shots.
