Information:

The Extralink 1U cable organiser model 6001 is a practical solution for 19" rack cabinets, designed for the tidy routing of patch cords between network devices such as switches and patch panels. Mounted flush to the rack rails, it occupies 1U and helps to neatly route cables horizontally within the cabinet or organise cables coming out of the ports of active devices. Five metal brackets make cable insertion easier, and the design works well with both copper and fibre optic cabling.

Full product description

Extralink 1U cable organizer with metal clamps model 6001

Cable organizer designed for 19" racks, allows to run patchcords connecting individual network components like switch or patchpanel. Similarly to many network devices, it is mounted butt mounted to rack rails and occupies 1U. It is equipped with 5 mental supports that allow easy cable entry. Organizer allows you to run horizontal cables from one side of the rack to the other or aesthetically arrange the cables coming out of the active device ports. It can be used with both copper and fiber optic cables.
